The Love You Leave Behind

You were a part of every day,
A welcome face, a gentle friend.
You filled my life in countless ways,
A love I thought would never end.

I miss the little things we shared,
The sounds, the habits, being near.
The quiet moments feel so strange,
And sometimes I still wish you were here.

Some days I smile at memories,
Some days the tears come instead.
I never know quite how I'll feel,
Or what will pass through heart and head.

I'll take my time, I'll let love stay,
And feel the sadness when it comes.
For all the joy you brought to me,
Lives on in memories of our time.

And though I cannot hold you now,
Or see your face when I come home,
I'm grateful for the life we shared,
And all the love I've ever known.
